

Happy 2011, everyone. We are delighted to be back at our desks, reviewing and adding new products to our catalog.

Quite a few of our library customers have been asking about ratings. How do titles get their ratings? What's the difference between a "T" rating and an "M" rating? Is (insert title name) a good title for my teen gamers? All good questions, and some very subjective answers. We do include title ratings on our website, but if you want to know WHY a particular title got a particular rating, the Entertainment Software Rating Board website (www.esrb.org) can answer ALL of your questions. When you enter a title by name, their database will tell you why a title got a particular rating. This information can better help you determine if a title is appropriate for your collection. I love this website, and in our offices, we refer to it often when we create custom lists for a library. Check it out!

Also, we're working now on our Winter Catalog Supplement which will contain lots of the newest titles plus some special offers. It will be available for download via the website in a few weeks. If you would like a print copy mailed to you, please send your mailing address to us at: info@crimsoninc.com
