

It's the most wonderful time of the year! Or, so the song goes. Actually, it is a wonderful time but oh so very busy. One of the big topics of conversation at our house is 'new SAT' vs 'old SAT.' It's not a particularly seasonal topic unless you're in the season of 'high school junior.' I'm certain that nobody ever wrote a song in praise of that wonderful time.

Santa's elves must have cried "Enough!" because there are just a few videogames titles coming out this month. The flood of releases in October and November are in stock now, and we are shipping them out as quickly as they come in. If you have a standing order program set up, you should have the new titles on your shelves right about now. Otherwise, they are coming. Be prepared for happy patrons.

One of Santa's special friends reminded me that Take Your Child to the Library Day is coming up on the first Saturday in February. This has become one of the most popular annual events at libraries around the country. Visit the Take Your Child to the Library Day website or Facebook page to learn more and register your library.

In housekeeping news, our offices will be closed from December 22 until January 4. One or more of us will be popping in from time to time during the week after Christmas (in search of some peace and quiet, probably), so send an email or leave a voicemail and we will be in touch. However, if you need a pro forma invoice in hand before the end of the calendar year, please send me an email by December 18th so that we can get that to you before we close.

I'm not quite ready to reminisce about 2015, lest I slow down before the finish line. (Must. Keep. Decorating.) I do, though, want to thank all of our library and school customers who make my job a pleasure every single day. There must be a class that hones the nice/smart ratio in all the library science students. It is extremely gratifying to work with nice people who are also smart. Or is it smart people who are also nice? Whichever it is, I thank you and send my very best wishes for a wonderful holiday season and a
