Our 50th Year

We are certainly enjoying some wonderfully sunny days this month. Like you, I normally tuck the Journal of Pediatrics into my bag for a little light reading at the beach. I was delighted to read that a study done at Boston Children's Hospital showed that parents who visit their public libraries at least once each month are three times more likely to read out loud to their children. That, in turn, leads to children with advanced literacy skills. But we knew that, didn't we?

I wanted to mention that our monthly audiobook Standing Order program continues to be a popular option for libraries who are looking to add between 3 and 24 books to their adult fiction collection each month and/or up to 12 books to their children/young adult collection. All books arrive completely rental ready, and all Standing Orders can start and stop anytime.

Our Video Game Standing Order program has doubled in the number of subscribers over the past six months. Unlike the audiobook program, each Video Game Standing Order library maintains their own profile so that the titles selected for their collection each month is done on an individual basis. We make sure that your library has exactly the type of collection – platform, rating, genre – that will circulate at top speed. To get started, simply fill out the profile and email to us.

Finally, we will be undertaking our annual physical inventory from July 22 through July 29. We will not be shipping orders during that time. If your library has a fiscal year end on July 31, please contact us soon to get your account squared away. Pro forma invoices are available if you need them.

Happy happy summertime to all!
